

Steve Schram

Steve Schram is a co-founder of VaxLiant™. He continues to serve as president and chief executive officer of AgriLabs®, a parent company of VaxLiant.

Schram currently directs AgriLabs' and ProLabs® business-development and strategic initiatives to ensure the company is positioned for growth and profitability. Since joining the company in 1995, he has been instrumental in making significant investments in developing AgriLabs' product research and testing protocols. As a result, the animal-health industry's leading manufacturers recognize the company's flexibility, agility and ability to get new products to market quickly. Schram has been involved in a number of domestic and international joint ventures that have successfully introduced new products to the marketplace. For AgriLabs, this success has meant unequalled access to new animal-health products as well as top performers among established products.

Before joining AgriLabs in 1995, Schram started his 29-year animal-health career with Syntex Animal Health. He earned his bachelor's degree in animal science from Iowa State University.